So Goes the Class of '68

Way back in the fall of '64, Mr. Dallas gave the 78 greenies the usual "welcome-to-high-school" speech. After that first "shaking-up," we remained as meek, little angels for the entire term.

But then came the sophomore year and the 68 returning angels soon lost their halos. After passing Drivers' Training, we joined the world of wheels and went out to smash fenders.

The teachers shuddered when 59 rowdy juniors came back in '66. Blernish problems rose drastically when we sold our chocolate-almond candy bars. Later on, in May, the McCurdy Hotel hosted an enthusiastic group of upperclassmen. What a Prom!

And in '67's fall the administration just downright cried when 57 sophisticated (?) seniors appeared ... to make new friendships and renew old ones ... to create a groovy Homecoming ... to set a good example ... and finally, to sing the traditional "Halls Of Ivy."
